Welcome to Game Night

Everything you need is in this pack. The turkey can wait — probably.

What's inside

Five Seconds — 24 prompt cards. Name 3 things before the count runs out.

Thanksgiving Trivia — 20 questions, from Plymouth Rock to Black Friday.

Scattergories — Letter T — One round, 12 categories, every answer starts with T.

Charades — 24 slips to act out. No talking, no props, no mercy.

Word Scramble — 10 holiday words, thoroughly scrambled by Phil.

You'll also want

· Scissors for the card pages (or tear carefully along the dotted lines).
· A pencil for every player, and a phone or timer for Five Seconds and Scattergories.
· Snacks within reach. This is not optional.

A word for the host

Every answer in the pack lives at the very back, in the Host Answers section, on its own pages. Print the whole pack, then keep those last pages in your pocket until you need them — nobody at the table has to see a single answer before their turn. Player pages never carry answers. House rule: the host's ruling is final, and the host is always right. Especially this host.

Phil says: may your gravy be smooth and your five seconds generous.

Scattergories — Letter T

Print one sheet per player. Three minutes on the clock.

Every answer must start with the letter T. Write one answer for each category before the timer ends. When time is called, read your answers aloud: an answer nobody else wrote scores 1 point. The same answer as someone else? Nobody scores for it. Two-word answers score 2 if both words start with T. The host settles arguments — see the back pages.

Host Answers

How to judge the games that have no single right answer.

Five Seconds — judging

There are no fixed answers, and that's the fun. An answer counts if it's a real example of the card's thing and nobody at the table objects. Duplicates don't count. If the table splits, the host decides — and a generous host keeps the game moving. Three good answers inside the count scores the card; keep cards you win, and the most cards at the end takes the round.

Scattergories — letter T, settling it

Scoring is on the player sheet. For disputes: the answer must genuinely start with T and genuinely fit the category. 'Turkey' fits almost everything at this table and still only counts once per sheet. Creative answers the table laughs at and accepts are legal. Answers the table groans at are also legal, but cost the player their dignity, which is not refundable.

Charades — the one rule

The slips are the answers, so there's nothing to hide here — just keep the bowl covered until each player's turn. Standard gestures are allowed: 'sounds like', number of words, and the universal spinning finger for 'keep going'. Sixty seconds per slip is a good house limit.

Spotted Phil

Phil hides in the art of every game in this pack. If two players call him at the same moment, the point goes to whoever is holding the least pie. The host did not make that rule up just now. The host absolutely made that rule up just now.

Thanks for Playing

From our table to yours — we're grateful you spent part of the day with Phil. Secret Patterns Studio makes printable art, coloring books, and small joyful things — every design drawn from mathematics and code, by hand-guided geometry.

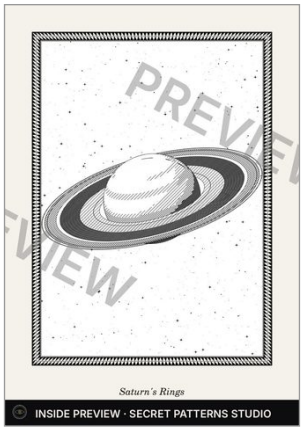

The fun doesn't stop at the table. On the site you'll find the Play Corner: Finding Phil (he's hiding in whole worlds now), Sacred Chess, mazes, memory games and more — plus apps to play with, like the Mandala Maker and the Pattern Playground, and interactive backgrounds that move with your cursor.

Come and play, look around, and if something makes you smile, the shop is full of it. New pieces arrive every week.
